

You Might Not Know About This Popular Crepey Skin Moisturizer On Amazon

"I would say the change in just 1 month is 75%," one reviewer said.

By Erica Kam and Tessa Flores | Feb 4, 2025

Amazon | The DerMend Specialized Fragile Skin Moisturizing Cream.

HuffPost and its publishing partners may receive a commission from some purchases made via links on this page. Every item is independently curated by the HuffPost Shopping team. Prices and availability are subject to change.

One of the skin care issues you may face if you have mature skin is “crepey”, fragile or wrinkly texture. Because crepey skin is very thin and lacks elasticity, it can be at higher risk for tearing or bruising, which can make treating it important to prevent infection, beyond aesthetic concerns.

Luckily, many skin care products on the market aim to treat crepey skin by smoothing and firming it, but there’s one reviewer-beloved cream on Amazon you may not have heard of. Don’t worry, we won’t gatekeep: The DerMend Specialized Fragile Skin moisturizing cream is available on Amazon, and it may just be one of the best crepey skin moisturizers we’ve come across.

This moisturizing cream, meant for mature skin, contains all kinds of skin-nourishing ingredients: hyaluronic acid and ceramides for hydration, glycolic acid to exfoliate and retinol plus niacinamides to help improve the appearance of crepey wrinkles. It can be used on both the face and body, and can smooth and tighten sagging in addition to its hydrating qualities.

For the best results, you’ll want to apply the cream wherever you have crepey skin two times a day, once in the morning and once at night (or according to your dermatologist’s instructions, if they vary). And yes, this cream does come dermatologist-recommended: Multiple reviewers say the reason they bought it in the first place was because their doctors told them to.

Reviewers also noted that while results aren’t instantaneous, sometimes taking several weeks for visible improvements, the improvements are noticeable and worth both the effort and the slightly higher price of the cream. Plus, a little goes a long way with this stuff, according to several pleased shoppers, so the 4.5-ounce tube should hopefully last a while.

With a 4.4-star average rating across more than 4,600 reviews, it’s fair to say that this cream is trusted for reducing the appearance of crepey skin, as well as the easy bruising that can result from it. Below, check out more rave reviews about the popular DerMend moisturizer, or scroll just a bit farther to shop it on Amazon and start waving your crepey skin goodbye.

“I began using this morning and night for a month and wow do I notice my fragile thinning skin on my arms looking healthier and younger. Best part is that my skin has toughened up enough not to tear and bruise as it used too. I’m using it now at least once daily after showering. Great ingredients and my dermatologist told me to continue. It works well on my sensitive skin and I have much less noticeable bruising from bumps due to blood thinners.” — Bella

“My husband lost a lot of weight - over 100 lbs and with that also lost a lot of muscle mass. His skin is very thin and the smallest bump will rip his skin. He arms were TERRIBLE looking to the point that he would only wear long sleeves in Texas. A dermatologist recommended this and he was HIGHLY SKEPTICAL and has now asked me to set this up for subscribe and save! Not only does it help to moisturize his skin - it helps protect it and when he does get a cut, it appears to heal faster without the skin discoloration. This is TRULY one of the best products we’ve tried in any capacity recently.” — Amazon customer

“My forearm skin has improved significantly. It’s smoother and more resilient. I use it morning and night and protect my arms with gloves when I drive. I would say the change in just 1 month is 75%! Will continue to use.” — Kati G

“My doctor suggested I try this for my arms, which were always looking so bad. I wore long sleeves constantly. This has made my skin completely turn around. I can actually wear short sleeves again. It may be expensive, but it works as well worth the price.” — Boonester

“It smooths without being greasy. It’s helping with spots already, and I’ve only been using it for a few days. I thought it was vastly overpriced before I bought it, but I’m going to be a repeat customer. You get what you pay for.” — Lisa L.

Looking for more help with crepey skin? Try these dermatologist-recommended products for your neck:

A peptide and retinol neck complex

Dr. Navin Arora, a board-certified dermatologist and founder of Borealis Dermatology in New York, as well as Kung, suggested this neck-specific formula by SkinCeuticals, a clinical skin care brand that frequently comes with dermatologist's stamp of approval for their effective formulas.

"[It's] an amazing combination of retinol and peptides that is specifically formulated to tighten delicate neck skin," Arora said of this daily cream that contains a 0.2% concentration of slow-release retinol, a time-honored ingredient that accelerates the skin's cellular turnover rate, promoting collagen production. Hydrating seed oils are supplemented with a 5% glucaine complex, a plant-derived ingredient that can support skin's natural resistance to premature aging.

A cream that targets three main neck skin concerns

According to Arora, the Techno Neck Perfecting Cream by Skinbetter Science is popular product that improves crepiness, dryness, sagging, laxity and texture in the skin of the neck and décolleté. "A key ingredient is heptapeptide-7, a targeted peptide that supports the skin's collagen network," he said.

The formula contains a smart combination of hydroxy acids and a uniquely formulated form of vitamin A that's similar to retinol, but won't cause excess irritation. You can also expect a whole host of ingredients that can improve the look and feel of skin from niacinamide, a faithful brightener, squalane, an emollient to help skin retain moisture and a targeted peptide to plump fine lines.

A dermatologist-trusted tinted sunscreen

Both Kung and Arora stressed the importance of prevention when it comes to managing crepey skin, specifically when it comes to the damaging potential of the sun.

"Use sunscreen with zinc and titanium oxide," Kung said. "UV exposure breaks down collagen and elastin in skin that help it stay tight and firm. Once these fibers break down, the skin can loosen, thin and wrinkle."

Camp (along with several other dermatologists in the past) previously suggested this sunscreen from Elta MD, which according to him, can also shield skin from visible UV rays in overhead lighting because of its tinted formula.

The zinc oxide- and octinoxate-based formula features SPF 46 along with high-purity niacinamide, a well-known anti-inflammatory that reduces redness and helps to restore damaged skin.